

A Summer Spiritual Practice @ the Blanton

By

Rebecca Guengerich

Spiritual Director and Director of Spirituality and Wellness

Summer has arrived. It is hot! Our routine is different. The days are longer. Families and friends reconnect. It is the season for growth.

Have you ever thought of visiting the Blanton Museum as a response to summer and God?

- It is hot --- The Blanton is the perfect place to visit during the heat of the day. Thanks God, for creativity!
- Your routine is different --- You may travel more, missing connections with church. A Summer Spiritual Practice @ the Blanton is a different way to re“member” with God.
- The days are longer --- God, the Blanton and contemplation belong together! When the days grow longer and hotter, we sit. As we take a pew in nature, in church or the art museum, new aspects of God slowly unfold.
- It’s a time to connect to family and friends --- Load up the car with relatives and friends. Travel to the Blanton. Ponder the questions of the A Summer Spiritual Practice @ the Blanton. (Parents, be creative! Revise the questions for your younger children). You will be enriched when the Creator connects through canvas and conversation.
- It is a season to grow --- Summer time is a growing season, not only for beans and okra, but for you, to grow with the Holy One. Experts say we view a work of art for only 17 seconds. When you look at the stars, the light, creation and creativity for more than 17 seconds, behold the glory of God is revealed!

A Summer Spiritual Practice @ the Blanton is an invitation to grow and it is a click away.